

Online courses

Coursera and Indian School of Business announce the launch of two new specialisations called 'Business Technology Management' for professionals in the IT industry and 'Trading Strategies in Emerging Markets' for beginners in financial markets sector. On an average, the specialisations will take about six months to complete. For more information, visit www.coursera.org.

Doodle 4 Google

Doodle 4 Google is an annual competition held by Google to have children create a logo that will be featured on the publications must be accompanied by a completed official entry form signed by the student's parent or guardian. For details, visit <https://doodles.google.co.in/d4g>.

Prabha Dutt Fellowship

The Prabha Dutt Fellowship in Journalism encourages women who wish to investigate and research on any topic of contemporary relevance. The 10-month fellowship is open to women who are Indian nationals and are in the age group of 25 to 40.

The last date to apply is December 31, 2016. For more information, visit www.sanskritifoundation.org/prabha-dutt-fellowship.htm.

of MicroMasters courses, visit www.edx.org/micromasters.

For more information regarding IIMB's MicroMasters programmes, visit www.edx.org/micromasters/iiimb-business-management and www.edx.org/micromasters/iiimb-entrepreneurship.

Webinars to study abroad

Starting from October 8, 2016, www.coolgrad.com will conduct free webinars for approx one or two hours every Saturday to train students all over the world on how to write an excellent Statement of Purpose step by step.

There will also be webinars on study abroad guidance.

programmes. Enrolled students can watch video lectures, attend live online sessions, participate in online case studies and have online discussions as well. Currently, various MBA specialisations are available through this mode.

For more details, visit www.onlinePondUnl.edu.in or call 080-45453102.

IMI PGDM Courses

The International Management Institute (IMI), New Delhi has begun admissions for its various postgraduate programmes in Management including two-year programmes in Human Resource Management and Banking and Financial Services, a 15-month Executive Education in Management and a Fellowship Programme in Management. The last date for accepting online application forms is December 12, 2016. For more details, visit www.admission.imi.edu.

Essay competition

The Royal Commonwealth Society has launched The Queen's Commonwealth Essay Competition 2017, focusing on the theme of A Commonwealth for Peace. The competition is open to all citizens and residents of the Commonwealth countries, aged 18 and under. The last date to submit is May 1, 2017. For additional information, visit www.bct.ly/2dtrQ5Q.

urday. The course is open to all. The number of seats is limited to 30. Admissions will be done on a first-come-first-served basis. For more information, visit www.mppfr-btr.in.

Aerospace engineering

University of Sheffield, UK is inviting applications for BEng in Aerospace Engineering starting in September 2017. This course gives students a solid grounding in Aerospace Engineering. After a year of core study, students will choose either the avionic systems or aeromechanics stream. In the final year, students will work on a research project led by one of its world leading academics.

The modules cover aeropropulsion, aerodynamic design, aircraft dynamics and control, computational aerodynamics and project management. The last date to apply is June 30, 2017. For more details, visit www.sheffield.ac.uk/aerospace or email aerospace-admissions@sheffield.ac.uk.

Fundamentals of Business Management

Indian Institute of Management Bangalore (IIMB) partners with CMR Institute of Management Studies (CMRIMS) to offer their IIMB Certificate Programme on Fundamentals of Business

Managing skills

The International Management Institute, New Delhi announced its admission process for various postgraduate programmes in management. To be eligible one must possess a Bachelor's degree or equivalent with a minimum of 50 per cent aggregate marks in any discipline, recognised by the Association of Indian Universities for admission in postgraduate programmes. Candidates with relevant work experience as well as fresh graduates are eligible to apply and all programmes are residential in nature. "Our aim is to impart skills to develop professional competence and promote sensitivity among students towards societal issues. We ensure that our selection procedure is comprehensive and transparent and that justified weightage is given for attitude, aptitude and conceptual knowledge of prospective students," said Shailendra Nigam, chairperson- admissions, IMI. For the online admission process, one should fill the application form and submit the same along with the admission fee of Rs 2,000 which is non-refundable. Admission is only through Cat/Gmat test scores and the deadline for submission is 12 December. For more details, visit: <http://admission.imi.edu/>.